

INSTRUCTIONS

TO FIND YOUR CLASSIFICATION FROM A ROUND YOU HAVE SHOT

Go to the target rounds tables and find the round that you have just completed from the headings across the top

Go down the column until you find the score that you shot for this round. If your score lies between 2 listed then round it down to the line below

Move across the row to the left or right to find the appropriate ratings index and take note of this number

Go to the ratings table below and find your category and bow type.

Find where your rating fits in. If your rating lies between 2 numbers round it down to the next classification.

EXAMPLE

Bob shoots a 782 for a Canberra Round. He is an open men's recurver

He looks down the list and finds that he has shot below the score required for a 75 rating and therefore he must use the 70 rating.

He goes to the ratings table and finds that a 70 rating for an open men's recurver is not quite enough for an MB but is sufficient for 1st class

TO FIND OUT WHAT SCORE YOU WILL NEED TO OBTAIN A CERTAIN CLASSIFICATION

Go to the ratings table below and find your category and bow type.

Find the classification that you want and take note of the rating required

Go to the target rounds table and choose a round that you would like to shoot

Look down the column until you find the relevant rating and the intersecting number will be the score required

EXAMPLE

Bob needs 1 more first class score to obtain his 1st class target badge and the round of the day is a Sydney

He looks at the ratings table and finds that an open men's recurver needs a rating of 65 to obtain a 1st class classification

He then goes to the target rounds table and finds to reach a rating of 65 for a Sydney he must shoot a score of 950 or greater.

NOTES

As you progress through the classification system there will be increasingly stricter rules. These can be related to the minimum distances and / or the number arrows that must be shot. Although you need to have 3 or more scores at a certain classification level to be able to claim an award, in some instances some of these rounds must be shot in inter-club competition. If in doubt you may need to check with the club recorder.
